Join us for this FREE exciting professional learning opportunity as we explore values and life experiences that make up who we are as person and as teacher!

Faculty and graduate students will facilitate workshops about the writing cycle, narrative writing, using the the Learning Partnership's Turning Points Essay Writing Contest as our guiding framework.

At the workshop, you will gather all the resources you need to implement narrative writing in a classroom including the teacher's guide, rubrics and success criteria, a month of mini-lessons and reflective writing activities, a draft of your own turning points personal narrative, and a certificate of completion).

You will also be offered the opportunity to serve as a Tier 1 judge for The Learning Partnership's Essay Writing Competition to be held in the Spring of 2018 (details to be announced at the workshop).

When? Saturday February 10 from 9 to 3.

Come well rested, with all you need to write.

And we will provide morning refreshments and a healthy and nutritious lunch.

Where? A257/A259

Please register through the Professional Learning Centre to have the event registered on your Record of Student Development.
